

Ship the smallest useful thing

TWO PORTFOLIOS, SAME SIX WEEKS

which one gets the interview?

8 TUTORIAL NOTEBOOKS

- House price predictor
- Handwritten digit demo
- Movie review sentiment
- Chatbot from a YouTube video

all ran perfectly, first time

1 THING PEOPLE USE

A WhatsApp bot that answers
questions about your hostel mess menu

- 40 students used it
- broke twice, you fixed it
- you wrote down what it gets wrong

you can answer 20 minutes of questions on it

The second one has the boring parts — and the boring parts are the interview

Notebook versus something someone used

Your first AI project should do one task for one person — and actually run.

- 1 A tutorial notebook proves you can follow steps. Nothing more.
- 2 Something deployed, that another person used, proves you can finish.
- 3 Write down honestly what it does badly. Almost nobody does this.

REMEMBER

That honest limitations note is the strongest thing in an AI portfolio.
