

You stop writing `new`. Spring hands you what you asked for.

DI

- 1 Your class declares: I need a `UserRepository`.
- 2 Spring finds one, builds it, and passes it in.
- 3 Your class never knows which implementation it got — that is the point.

REMEMBER THIS

Testing becomes easy because you can hand it a fake instead.